

First, I made the Employee class with the name, ssn, and net pay of the employee. Then I made the SalariedEmployee class which inherited the employee base class, and included all these variables from the Employee constructor and added the member variable salary. Then I created the class Doctor with member variables including the doctors specialty and fee. I added constructors and accessor and mutator methods to these, then created mainprob1.cpp to test the program.